

"The friends and colleagues I gained through this program are continuously supportive long after the program."

The Emerging Leaders Program (ELP)

addresses the core competencies needed to effectively manage organizations and complex programs as well as the leadership skills one needs to be successful within our quickly changing sector.

The program is designed for first-time Executive Directors and nonprofit managers who are preparing for, or pursuing, a leadership career track. The program is also appropriate for experienced corporate/government executives exploring a move into the nonprofit sector.

"As a retired educational administrator, the ELP experience provided the information I needed regarding the leadership responsibilities of non-profit organization Executive Directors. The workshops were informative and useful; the presenters knowledgeable and motivating; my fellow participants interesting, informed and collegial."

- William Levinson, Former Superintendent of Tamalpais High School District
